

Saving for secure futures, together.

Community Capital Bank of Virginia (CCB), a VCC subsidiary, is a certified community development bank providing deposit services targeted to institutional and socially conscious investors as well as community banks. Bank deposits support community development lending activity. Additionally, the bank offers savings products and financial education programs.

Why deposit with CCB?

If you're a bank - You're in the business of serving your community. So are we. You can receive Community Reinvestment Act credits for deposits you make with our Community Development bank, along with earning a market rate of return with FDIC coverage.

If you're a socially conscious investor - You care about helping people and your community. With VCC's banking subsidiary, your funds are FDIC insured, earn a market rate of return, and are reinvested to educate, grow and build sustainable communities.

If you're a potential saver - You are planning for your future. VCC's community development bank helps you save your money so you can realize your dreams.

Let's do more, together.
